Three Identified As Bandits Who Robbed Farm House

Climaxing an intensive investigation conducted by Sheriff John Baughn with the aid of only meager clues, six men were under arrest Monday, charged with being the bandits, who, posing as federal dry agents, looted the farm home of Charles Monnett, south of Yellow Springs, of silverware, household goods and clothing valued at $900 on the night of November 20, after first mistreating and threatening with firearms two elderly farmhands at the residence.

Captain Harry Carpelan, leader of the Taylor Expedition to the South Seas, is shown studying a map of the world in New York preparatory to the departure soon of his party of 60. Capt. Carpelan, together with Capt. Herman Ibbeken, former officer in the German Imperial Navy, will collect scientific material for a number of American museums, including those at Amherst and Beloit Colleges.

Red Flag Banned

The red flag has been officially banned from the public schools of Wichita, Kas., at the request of the local D. A. R. chapter, who believed it was too closely associated with Soviet Russia. It has been supplanted by the green flag, above, marked with a white cross. Now junior traffic patrols use a green flag when regulating traffic at school intersections.

HOBOES WEEP AS 'HOME' IS RAZED

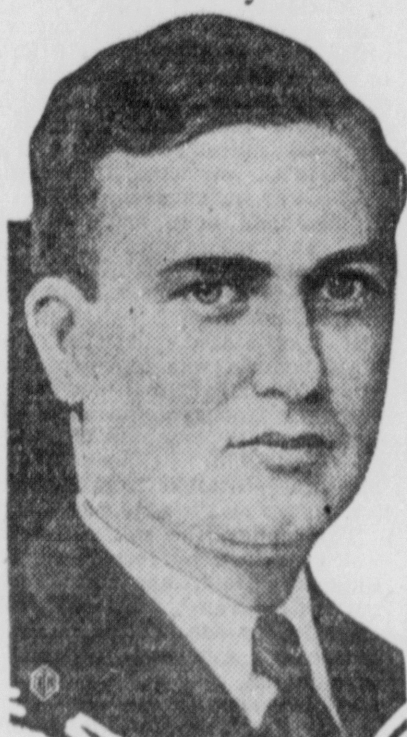

These are stirring times in "Hoboes' Home," Superior, Wis., where, for years, jobless wanderers have lived in a long line of abandoned coke ovens, adjoining railroad tracks. The old ovens are to be razed. The men have made doors for the mouths of the ovens and have otherwise made them habitable. As many as 50 men have lived in the ovens at one time, with little friction. The colony has had its own laws and arbiter. Photos are of the ovens and one of the inhabitants.

This haughty sheep has a right to look condescendingly at the camera as he stands on his dignity at the annual sheep exhibit held at Salt Lake City, Utah. He is known as "Madsen's Monarch" and has been declared grand champion for the second consecutive time. Furthermore, this is the tenth time that Monarch's owner, John M. Madsen, of Mt. Pleasant, Utah, has been able to boast a grand champion among his blooded prizes.

To Carry On

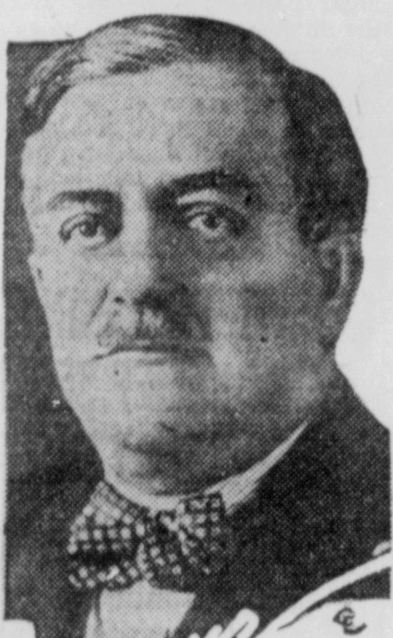

Charles Edison (above), 41, son of the late Thomas A. Edison, will continue to carry on with his father's great projects. He is president of the Edison Industries and chief operating executive of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., including its many subsidiaries. Charles Edison distinguished himself during the war by his invaluable aid to the Government.

"Adopts" Mayor

Gene Victor McGeorge (above), 14, is the self-made hero of a drama which has staid Philadelphia gasping. For this son of a miner of Montrose, Pa., has arrived at his unique goal of "adopting" the Mayor of the Quaker City, Harry Mackey. With the observation that, "Every house needs a feller, don't they?" Gene made himself at home as the foster son of His-zoner. And Mayor Mackey, impressed by his new "son," has taken him under his wing.

Heir and Actress to Wed?

Raquel Torres, beautiful film actress, enveloped in a cumbersome flying suit and parachute, is shown with William B. Leeds, son of the late tin plate king, at Roosevelt Field, L. I., just before Miss Torres hopped off for Newark, N. J., to fill a theatrical engagement. Raquel, who spent the week-end at the Leeds mansion on Long Island, was accompanied to Newark by Leeds in another plane. Rumor has it that the beauty and the tin plate heir will shortly culminate a romance with marriage, but Leeds has denied such reports.

Vindicated

Mrs. Emily Roberts Cobb, former actress, and widow of Justin L. Cobb, Jr., is pictured in her home at Mansfield, Mass., after she had been cleared of suspicion of having slain her husband. Grilled by police while suffering from injuries which she says were inflicted by her mate, Mrs. Cobb steadfastly denied she shot her husband to death. Her claim that he committed suicide was eventually upheld.

Shows Soldier's Pluck

Not all bravery is displayed on battlefields—as they can tell you at the Contagious Diseases Hospital in New York. For instance, here's Herbert Fuchs, only 8 years old, who, despite his month-long confinement in a respirator, still manages to smile cheerfully when a radio songbird croons to him. Dr. Smith and Nurse Reicks are shown with Herbert, on his 75th day in the respirator, as he enjoys the voice of Kate Smith coming from the radio set. Kate gave the program just for brave little Herbert.

MUSICIAN HELD TO GRAND JURY AFTER CASHING RUBBER CHECK

Pleading guilty to passing a worthless check for $70 upon a Cedarville druggist with whom he had become acquainted while they were in the army together, Paul Neff, 33, Bryan, O., was held to the grand jury under $500 bail by Mayor A. E. Richards, of Cedarville, Monday morning. In default of bond he was ordered committed to jail in Xenia.

Neff, a musician who has been identified with many leading orchestras but who had been out of work for some time, stopped at the Harold H. Brown drug store in Cedarville Saturday afternoon for a chat with the proprietor, whom he had known in the army. They played in the same band for two years.

Neff told the druggist he was staying at the Van Cleve Hotel in Dayton and asked Brown to cash a $70 check for him on a Bryan, O. bank. Although reluctant because the amount of the check was large, Brown yielded.

After Neff had driven away in his auto, the druggist's wife became suspicious of the validity of the check. Brown communicated with the bank at Bryan and learned the check was worthless, and also that the musician is wanted in that city on other bogus check charges.

The druggist, accompanied by Marshal Hayes McLean, of the village, went to Dayton late Saturday afternoon and found Neff seated in the hotel lobby. Neff said he was not surprised to see them and submitted quietly to arrest.

Neff had used the money to pay his hotel bill of $60 in full. The $10 he had left was returned to Brown.

Neff plays a sousaphone and for four years he was a member of Henry Thies' national famous orchestra, now on the staff of radio station WLW in Cincinnati. He had his instrument in the rear of his auto while in Cedarville.

general staff of establishment of a neutral zone in the Chinchow region under League of Nations auspices stiffened. There were indications the army would not consent to such a proposition unless the zone is established inside the great wall, the general staff contending Shanhaiwan, Chinchow and the area surrounding them are normally under jurisdiction of Mukden.

Unverified reports from Fashih-shan today stated that General Ma Chan-Shan, defeated Heilungkiang provincial commander, was preparing to move the remnants of his army against Tsaitshar, taking advantage of the withdrawal of the bulk of Japanese troops from that city.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Although the Japanese foreign office has retracted its sensational criticism of Secretary of State Stimson, considerable tension continues today to mark relations between Tokyo and Washington.

It struck state department officials here as odd, to say the least, that no sooner had the foreign office retracted its criticism than the Japanese war department promptly came forward with another statement which accused either Stimson or the American ambassador of having "distorted" the Japanese position.

Some officials expressed the belief that Secretary of State Stimson was being made "the goat" in a quarrel between the Japanese war department and the Japanese foreign office. The understanding is here that the military heads in Japan are at loggerheads with the civil officials of the foreign office, and each group is conveniently using American "interference" to promote its own ends.

Meanwhile strong hope was felt here today that the conversations proceeding directly between the Japanese and Chinese might be productive of a peaceable solution of the Manchurian "mess," or at least bring about a cessation of actual hostilities.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—Agriculture's greatest benefactor and most distinguished servant for 1931 will be decorated with the American Farm Bureau Federation's award for "Distinguished Service to Organized Agriculture" at the federation's convention here Dec. 7.

President E. A. O'Neal is going over the list of twenty-five candidates submitted from all parts of the United States and from this he will name the person who is to receive the gold medal and certificate in recognition for the best contribution of the year toward the problems of farming.

"The award has been given annually since 1928 in recognition of service calling for personal sacrifice and effort far beyond the demands of ordinary duty," the federations' announcement states.

"It is the highest recognition of individual devotion to the advancement and well being of agriculture through organized effort. Emphasis is placed on the requirement that this unselfish, successful service must be on behalf of organized agriculture."

The six previous recipients of the medal are: George M. Putnam of New Hampshire; George L. Cooley of Ohio; Dr. L. N. Duncan of Alabama; T. L. Haecker of Nebraska; Dudley H. Myers of Illinois; and Mrs. Ellsworth Richardson of Iowa.

INDIFFERENCE IS MENACE DECLARES PASTOR IN SERMON

"The greatest menace to any good in the world is indifference," charged the Rev. W. H. Tilford, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, in a sermon delivered Sunday night at quintet union services held at the Baptist Church.

"This spiritual and mental indifference not only kills church life but the whole of the life in the community."

The minister declared the "take it or leave it" attitude, declaring that "indifference closed our Y. M. C. A.—indifference let our Community Chest fall short of its goal—indifference allowed chautauqua to go—indifference closes the church and kills prayer meetings, discourages pastors, permits vice to grow, indifference kills religious enthusiasm and will kill the mission boards and the work of the church in world-wide obedience to Jesus' command."

Taking as his text, "Ladocaea—the Luke Warm Church," the Rev. Mr. Tilford said that "indifference is an absolute mark of the condemnation of Jesus in line with that of the Laodiceans, Christ approaches his indictment of the church at Laodicea with a five-page catalogue of its real condition. A state of utter stoniness. No savor. No zeal. No pep. They brought no dishonor on Christianity, neither did they bring honor. They made no mistakes, but they did not attempt anything. They offered no one, neither did they help anyone. Luke warm."

President E. A. O'Neal is going over the list of twenty-five candidates submitted from all parts of the United States and from this he will name the person who is to receive the gold medal and certificate in recognition for the best contribution of the year toward the problems of farming.

"The award has been given annually since 1928 in recognition of service calling for personal sacrifice and effort far beyond the demands of ordinary duty," the federations' announcement states.

"It is the highest recognition of individual devotion to the advancement and well being of agriculture through organized effort. Emphasis is placed on the requirement that this unselfish, successful service must be on behalf of organized agriculture."

The six previous recipients of the medal are: George M. Putnam of New Hampshire; George L. Cooley of Ohio; Dr. L. N. Duncan of Alabama; T. L. Haecker of Nebraska; Dudley H. Myers of Illinois; and Mrs. Ellsworth Richardson of Iowa.

How Did You Feel When You Got Up This Morning?

Did you greet the day with a smile of good nature and good health or did you awake "on edge," irritable and with a well developed case of morning grouch? The tension, the persistent pressure of modern life is hammering at your nerves and your health is being undermined. Take heed! Your most precious asset is your health. Don't ignore the danger signal that the "ready-to-fly-off-the-handle" feeling tells.

An Eminent Physician Says:

"If you wake up almost as tired as when you went to bed, if your legs ache and you are troubled with headaches, gas, indigestion, no appetite, bad breath, sallow complexion or a host of other ailments, then I sincerely recommend an immediate trial of Vitalex." This remarkable vitaminized tonic will renew your vigor and vitality and

Increase Your Pep and Power

Vitalex contains the precious vitamins A, B and D but it is not a miracle medicine. Yet one grateful user recently wrote, "Send me another bottle of Vitalex. Two weeks ago I set my crutches aside for the first time in seven years and am walking with a cane now." Vitalex has proven to be the ideal food supplement tonic laxative and body builder for hundreds of thousands of people. Its makers, the famous I. S. Johnson Laboratories of Boston (over 110 years old) guarantee that Vitalex—either tablet or liquid form—contains no strong stimulants, no powerful drugs, no heart depressants and no opiates. Vitalex is safe, satisfying and above all delightfully effective.

Vitalex Is More Than a Tonic The 7-Day Wonder Test Proves it

The ailing, the weak, the convalescent, the run-down and dependent, those who hear inside whispers "you are slipping," weakened men, tired women, puny children—everybody may take advantage of the Vitalex 7-Day Wonder Test. Thousands have reported such wonderful results from Vitalex that common sense directs us to sell it under an absolutely money-back guarantee. Try it for seven days and if you do not feel better, eat better, look better and sleep better return what is left and get a full refund of your money. What could be fairer? What could be more in your favor? Start taking Vitalex Tonic Tablets or Vitalex Tonic Liquid today. Next week you will thank us.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

He that withholdeth corn, the people shall curse him; but blessing shall be upon the head of him that selleth it.—Proverbs, xi, 26.

TOO HELPLESS

As emergency aids and time-savers personal service bureaus have been established by various agencies and individuals. Information desks are maintained in stores and institutions, public and private. Columns of advice and information are printed in the newspapers. To all these quarters come countless requests for information and advice. Nor does the existence of these bureaus, desks and columns discredit the intelligence of mankind. No one need be blamed if he asks enlightenment on any given subject.

Yet there is a type of person with whom personal service bureaus, particularly, come into contact whose requests tend to destroy any beautiful faith in the quality of the homo sapiens' grey matter. This is the lost soul who does not know where to go for the information he desires, with resultant waste of time and patience for all concerned.

A woman in a middle western city recently telegraphed to a personal service bureau in New York, "Is it correct to pick lemon out of tea and squeeze it?" When the answer that this was not considered good form was relayed by telegraph, there came a second question, "How do you get the lemon into the tea if you don't squeeze it?" This required a fourth telegram to the effect that the flavor of the lemon was absorbed by the hot tea.

In the city where the woman lived were several sources from which she could have obtained answers to these queries. A library or a book store could have supplied an etiquette book. If no other social mentor was to be found. Any high school teacher of chemistry, any doctor, almost anyone with plain common sense would have explained the action of hot tea on the juices in a slice of lemon.

Many other instances could illustrate the foggy thought processes of hundreds of people. The number of those who do not know how to use standard books of reference is amazing. When a question confronts a person few stop to think where an answer might logically and quickly be obtained.

From the experience of those to whom the public runs with its demands for information, it is evident that an ignorance even more fundamental than is implied in the propounding of any one query lies behind a major proportion of the requests.

MUSSOLINI ADVOCATES

Premier Mussolini is advocating action that will bring about limitation of armaments and promote peace, but he is also a practical man and he is not assuming anything rashly in advance of a successful disarmament conference. So in Italy, 1,000,000 boys between the ages of 16 and 20 years are being enrolled for "pre-military" Sunday training. This training will be compulsory, and will be chiefly for the purpose of teaching the youngsters how to fire muskets. Half a million dollars is set apart for the purchase of shells, and the boys participating are to be rewarded with an abbreviation of their period of compulsory army service which begins at the age of 20.

Dyed-in-the-wool pacifists doubtless will find in this order for universal pre-military training in Italy, proof of duplicity and hypocrisy or at least of inconsistency, on the part of Il Duce; but we do not think that any of those things can justly be charged up against him. It is merely that while Mussolini has ideals he likewise is a realist; and he knows that in order to get anywhere in a deal, a man or a nation must be able to back up his position with something beside theories. The more evident the ability of Italy to take its own part in case of need, the more respect its words will get in a conference to arrange for disarmament measures. The country will have something to trade with. The United States would get further in its efforts for peace, and arms and fleet reduction if its government and people understood better what Mussolini so evidently realizes.

With its 90-day divorce law in effect, maybe Arkansas can now get a little of the divorce business that has been passing by on the other side.

The party coaches and captains are all watchfully waiting for the breaks and hoping that their star performers will take advantage of any that come.

It occurs to us that some of the football teams that are having more, and still more post season games "arranged" for them, may contain young men who need to get back to their studies, and want to.

Other Editorial Thoughts

THE FILTHY "HUMOR" OF THE DAY

Perhaps there are some sound advantages in the prevailing tendency toward "frankness" in discussion of matters of sex. But there are disadvantages too, because there are lots and lots of people who may not safely be relieved of all their inhibitions, and who inevitably confound liberty with license.

As a direct result of the throwing aside of reticence in the discussion of intimate subjects, the country is becoming gross in its conversation and its thought.

The barroom and bawdy house jokes and stories of yesterday are fast being accepted as the "polite" humor of today. If you do not believe this, stock up with copies of the popular "humorous" publications, including some of those issued by college students, and examine them at leisure, and if you happen to be of the last generation, in privacy, you will find that, to an appalling extent, coarseness and outright lewdness are supplanting legitimate fun, and that many of the quips and anecdotes are of a sort that would have been banned by a cautious burlesque producer of 25 years ago, for fear of the police.

"But," somebody parrots, "this is all a matter of manners, not of morals, and doesn't mean anything." Quite a lot of it undoubtedly is a result of an extension of the manners of red light society and gangland to respectable society; but it also is just as true today as it was 2,000 years ago, that out of the heart the mouth speaks, and that the evil which comes from the lips of a man corrupts him.

Jokes at the expense of virtue, sneers at decency and refinement, studied scorn of the humor of the last century because it was clean, are evidences of a tendency in American life and thought it is not at all pleasant to contemplate. Evil communications corrupt good manners first, but, persisted in, they also corrupt lives.—Detroit Free Press.

MY NEW YORK

By JAMES ASWELL

NEW YORK — From the notebook of an inquisitive fellow:

Fifty thousand pieces of poison-soaked bread have been scattered all over Central park to kill the rats. The late Henry Reichenbach's posthumous autobiography, "Phantom Fame," tells how that greatest promoter of them all named "September Morn," after the picture had been rejected for a brewer's calendar. This is the balmy Indian summer I have ever known in New York.

Johnny Pope's death at 32 the other day eliminated another of the most colorful personalities Wall Street has ever known. He was the only man ever called to task by the business conduct committee of the Stock Exchange, who defied its order, convinced the members that his action had been correct and continued in his attitude. Joseph Hergeshelmer has dictated as much as 20,000 words in a day of a novel—about one-fourth of the average book length—and let them stand without changing a comma. Yesterday I was approached by a man offering stock in a gold mine. It is curious that newspapers have not found more different names for themselves. Mention a dozen—things like "Star," "Beacon," "Journal," "Times," "News," "Citizen" and so on—and you have named a large proportion of our daily news organs. The first paper in New York the "Gazette," was founded in 1725.

Only about 80 per cent of the population of New York are American citizens. There are more clerks in town than any other type of worker. The census reveals 675 miners or quarriers in the city. Ann Watkins, one of the city's ritzier literary agents, once sold a story to the movies for $30,000 after having read only the first two chapters. She had to improvise the remainder of the novel for the movie moguls on the spur of the moment. The author heard her version and liked it so well he changed his plan and followed it.

DOOR

A friend who is about to move made me a gift last night of an amusing curio. It is a large door, hinges and all, but its face is a dummy bookshelf, filled with a convincing assortment of books.

Some of the titles: "Love Lyrics," by H. L. Mencken; "Ulysses," by James Joyce; "Have You," by Any Chance; "Complete Works of Walker Scott,"—inscribed on a wafer-thin volume; "Blondes and How to Compose Them," by Sigmond Speeth, and so on.

But this is the story about that door: It used to hang in the office of a publishing house. Soon after my first arrival in New York I entered the firm in search of a job. The man I wanted to see was in the sanctum guarded by that joking panel of false book fronts. It did not open to admit me. I got a nice warm feeling whenever I view it hanging, trophy-wise, on my wall.

Fedor Matveyevitch Apraxin, a distinguished Russian admiral, was governor of Archangel at the age of 21.

Janos Arany, next to Pefofi, was the greatest of modern Hungarian poets.

Sugar beets are a great crop-yield stimulator. After ground has been used for sugar beets other crops are found to increase 50 to 80 per cent in tonnage.

PEACE OR PIECES—WHICH?

State Department Finds Japanese Government Is Queer One To Deal With

—CHARLES P. STEWART—

WASHINGTON — Who said so can't be told (for one of diplomacy's first rules is secrecy, whether there is any sense in it or not), but Japan has a mighty queer government to deal with. This information is authentic; I had it directly from a state department official, who has been up to his neck for weeks in negotiations with Tokio concerning the island empire's Manchurian activities.

He continued thus: On paper Emperor Hirohito is a strictly constitutional ruler. Besides a diet, for lawmaking purposes, he has a cabinet (more like England's than this country's) with a premier, whose job nominally is about on a par with Ramsay MacDonald's in London.

England also has a king, just as Japan has an emperor, but between England's king and Japan's emperor there is a difference, which is all the more confusing to occidental diplomats, in such negotiations as the recent ones over Manchuria, because it does not show on the surface.

King George figures very prominently in the English governmental picture, but all persons who are at all familiar with its details are perfectly aware that he possesses no authority whatever; actual executive authority is vested in the premier, approximately as it is vested in the president here in the United States.

In Japan the emperor is, in fact, absolute. The constitution, the cabinet, the premier, the diet, the whole outfit exists simply upon Hirohito's sufferance.

The Japanese system would be easy enough for occidental negotiators to adapt their policies to if the Japanese themselves would admit it as a reality. But they refuse to do so. From the emperor on down, they insist that their monarchy is precisely what it amuses them to make believe that it is. They recognize that absolute monarchies are out of date and do not propose to concede that theirs lingers in the world, a belated survival.

Indeed, there are a few Japanese who play at constitutionally with an enthusiasm that suggests downright acceptance of it as a fully established institution. Baron Reijiro Wakatsuki, the present premier, for example, has behaved during the Manchurian crisis in "a fashion which almost has convinced foreign diplomats that he considered himself a genuine premier—or, at any rate, that he was trying to become a genuine one."

Had the Manchurian issue not been of a nature to align the strongest rival influence in Nippon against him, it is even thought that the baron might have been successful in putting his office upon a permanently firmer basis.

However, it happens (so, at least, the state department feels certain) that Japanese acquisition of Manchuria was an enterprise in which the dominant military element among the islanders was committed.

Now, it is among the anomalies of Japan's fictional constitution that the chief of staff of the islanders' army and the commanding admiral of their naval forces are independent of the jurisdiction of the cabinet ministries of war and the navy respectively; that they look instead to the emperor in person for their orders.

The war and navy ministers are supposed to be sure, to shape their commands conform to the wishes of the cabinet, but whether or not they will be carried out depends on what instructions their technical subordinates have had or may get from an entirely different source.

The truth is, it is whispered in state department circles, it pays the emperor himself to make his commands conform to the wishes of his fighting men's wishes. That attempts to thwart the Japanese military leaders' ambitions may be actually dangerous is suggested by recent accounts (by no means discredited in official Washington) of the discovery of a plot among members of the army group to end interference with the Manchurian campaign by assassinating Premier Wakatsuki, Foreign Minister Baron Kijuro Shidehara and Count Nobuko Makino, keeper of the privy seal and confidential adviser to the emperor — which brings the conspiracy pretty close to royalty.

There were arrests, it is reported, but apparently no punishments. Anyway, various concessions which the League of Nations had been hoping for from Tokio at the time the story leaked out, failed to materialize.

To summarize: Japan's constitutional government (the only government it has for diplomatic purposes) is constantly subject to the whims of an intangible but all-potent super-government, on the one hand; on the other hand it is subject to termination on short notice by assassination at the hands of an overwhelmingly superior and wholly irresponsible power for which it theoretically is answerable.

It is difficult to negotiate satisfactorily with such a government, according to the state department official whose name I mustn't mention.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Meat Loaf Scalloped Potatoes Baked Onions Cabbage Salad Gingerbread Apple Pudding Coffee

Here is a new recipe for meat loaf, using ground cooked wheat. It is an economical dish and this recipe will serve 12.

Today's Recipes
Meat Loaf.—Three pounds hamburger, four cups ground cooked wheat, two cups bread crumbs, two eggs, two onions, one green pepper, one-half cup milk, pepper, salt. Mix hamburger with cooked wheat. Soften bread crumbs with cold water. Press out all moisture that will come out easily. Combine ingredients, pan-frying onion. Minutes in a small amount of fat before adding a small amount of mineral salts. Bake in a moderate oven. This amount makes two loaves.

Gingerbread Apple Pudding.—Peel and halve tart apples, and place in bake dish cavity side up. Fill cavity with brown sugar syrup which has been mixed a teaspoonful of cinnamon. Sprinkle a few raisins over the apples, and bake in oven until tender but not mushy. Pour over the apples a gingerbread batter, and return to the oven until the gingerbread is baked, or for about twenty minutes in moderate oven. This is nice served with orange or lemon sauce or with whipped cream.

Suggestions
Canning Pumpkin
Cut pumpkin in slices, pare, cut cubes, fill a kettle, place a tight lid on it and place in a slow oven. It will form its own juice, do not add water. When tender, mash, rub through a sieve, cook down until dry, fill hot sterilized jars, process twenty minutes.

Value of Corn Meal
Corn meal should be used often in the winter menu. As to its food value, it has a high starch content, a small percentage of protein and also a small amount of mineral salts. Thus it is chiefly an energy food and as such may be used to give variety to cereals, in place of potatoes, for breads, and in the making of casserole dishes and nutritious desserts.

The annual crop loss of tobacco is 396,300,000 pounds and cotton 3,371,000,000.

What Ills Attack Us

By LOGAN CLENDENIN, M. D.

Chilblain, known technically as pernio, is usually a disease of the winter months. Dampness and cold together are more likely to produce the condition than cold alone. But there is also a constitutional factor, certain people being more liable to the disease than others. It is likely to occur in those people who have a poor circulation. Those whose hands or feet or ears are always cold are more subject to chilblain than others. It is essentially a redness, an erythema, a circulatory change due to the temperature change. In those predisposed to it even exercise will bring it on. The chilblain area is red or bluish, painful, decidedly cool to the touch, and the color disappears on pressure. Sometimes after the long continued presence of chilblain in a certain spot other diseases engraft themselves on the same area.

In treatment the best and newest method is the use of ultra violet rays, to improve the circulation. Prevention is more important than cure; those who are subject to it should take every precaution against cold and dampness. Woolen socks or stockings, heavy shoes, and the use of every means to prevent wetting the feet, are recommended. Woolen socks should be worn to bed during the severe weather. General treatment to improve the whole body by regular exercise, a diet high in vitamins, and tonics should be added to local treatment. Massage of the part and rubbing with iodine ointment has been recommended.

Another disease of the skin which affects certain people during the winter months is a scalliness of the entire integument. In its severe form it is called ichthyosis or fish skin. The very severe forms usually bring the patients in to the show business, where they are exhibited as the "man-fish," or the "human shark" or some such imaginative title.

Many people suffer with the condition, but in a more mild form during the summer usually their skin is quite normal. It is never very oily, but during the summer months one would observe little difference from the normal skin. As soon, however, as winter comes, the skin begins to get dry and scales appear. Finally, the whole surface of the body is covered with fine bran-like scales which scrub off continuously. The skin is indeed not unlike the appearance of those fish which have fine scales.

There is no record of permanent cure, but there are methods to give relief when the condition is severe. Hot baths and hot sodium bicarbonate baths are used. Inunctions with oils have good results for obvious reasons. The X-ray and ultra violet light have been used with some success.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

M. R.: "A person 21 years old has heart burn. What is the cause? Could it be because he smokes? He usually has them after eating certain foods, especially oranges." Answer: Heart burn is due to an excess of acid gastric juice (stomach secretion). It may be caused by too much smoking. It is also frequently caused by ulcer of the stomach.

Hubby Lies To Wife

—By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE—

Deception is a pretty poor article with which to start married life. Even when the deception is supposed to be practiced to keep the victim of it from worrying, it breeds distrust.

"If he lies to me in one thing, how can I believe him in others?" is the natural reaction.

Margie writes that she found out returning from her honeymoon that her husband had deceived her, and that "during our two years of married life he has continually lied to me."

"I feel that he still loves me, but cannot understand that if it is so, why, after I plead with him not to lie any longer, he continues and says that he did it to encourage me not to worry."

I am afraid the excuse your husband gives for lying is what is known as "defense mechanism," Margie. He was afraid to tell you the truth and excused himself for not doing so by trying to make himself and you think he was shielding you from the unpleasant truth.

I fear, too, life with him will never be what it should if you cannot make him see clearly that you would always rather have the truth—no matter how unpalatable—than lies. Some people seem to have a perfect phobia for lying. It is so much easier for them to make up a story than to tell what is really so that they do it consistently. I don't know whether they have exaggerated imaginations as some people have exaggerated egos, or what peculiar kink makes them act so. But they certainly are trying to live with, or even to work with, in business or to associate with, socially.

If you still love your husband and feel that there is a chance for him to be perfectly frank with you and reestablish your confidence in him, take him back. But, as I say, I cannot see much happiness ahead for you or for your child if you feel you cannot eventually have faith in him and what he tells you.

Lovesick Anna May: Maybe the boy you love will tire of this other girl soon and come back to you. Winning back a man whose love has cooled is a good deal of a problem. The best way is to love 'em as lightly as they love you and forget 'em when they love you.

"Dear Miss Lee: I recently found out where a girl I care for lives. I have not seen her in four years but I would like to renew acquaintance. Should I forget her or attempt to go with her again? I loved her before she moved away and still do."

"LOVESICK SL"
I can't see any reason why you can't write to her, Sl. Tell her that you would like to be friends once more, and ask her permission to go to see her or write, or whatever it is you can do best. Maybe she feels about you as you do about her. At any rate you can find out. Do so pronto.

Shipwrecked: Sorry I didn't feel I had room to print your letter, Shipwrecked, as you requested. You just admire the older boy—have a crush on him, as many young girls do on older boys. It will wear out, so don't worry and go and have a good time with the boy your own age.

"Dear Virginia Lee: Please tell me it is proper for a girl to accept a wrist watch as a Christmas gift from a young man if they are on a friendly basis only? Must they be engaged for the girl to accept such a gift, or is it perfectly conventional and proper?"

"DAWN."
Strictly speaking, Dawn, and according to conventional rules, only engaged couples should exchange expensive gifts. Actually every day girls do accept such gifts from the boys with whom they are "going steady." I see no reason why you cannot accept such a gift if the boy wants to make it and you care enough for him to want to have it. What does your mother say?

Blonde: Don't wear your heart on your sleeve, Blonde. If the boy hasn't asked you for a date he is probably not interested in you, and you will only bore him by showing how deep an impression he made in you.

Jerry: If the boy you like is too shy to ask for a date, Jerry, I don't know what you can do except to show him you like him—in not too warm fashion, however. I think he will pluck up courage to ask for a date if he really is interested.

PLANET MERCURY HAS SHORT YEAR
Mercury's swift orbital motion carries it around the sun—its own local year period—in a very brief time, as compared with the earth's year: Mercury's sidereal year, i. e., from a given star across the sky to that same star again is 88 days, its synodic period, which means from the time when Mercury is exactly between the earth and the sun (inferior conjunction), or on the far side of the sun (superior conjunction), is 116 days. Mercury being so close to the sun, is difficult to lay eyes on. Its greatest elongation is 28 degrees, consequently Mercury as evening star goes down at twilight, and comes up when morning star, a little before sunrise.

Method Of Preparing Face

requirements are. If your skin is dry, it will need a wisp of film of cold cream to protect it from the rigors of the elements, and to make the powder appear smooth. If it is oily, a good astringent should give your skin just the right firmness and texture to make the powder smooth and lasting. If it is normal in its activities, and has been properly treated, no particular foundation will be necessary under the powder and rouge that you apply to it.

Xenia court fans now have more of a respectful regard for those bearded beauties of the basketball world, the House of David club. There were many who had a notion that the House of David combination booked to play the Lang Falcons here Friday night was the same which appeared at Dayton last season against the Taylor Trunks, national champion girls' team, but this proved a mistaken belief.

Their religious beliefs cause the House of David players to appear to the public as the most eccentric athletes in the world, but to them it's serious business. They are as shy of a razor as a fretful colt of a locomotive, and to lose their carefully cultivated chin gardens of shagginess would be the greatest disgrace that could befall one of their flock. Their chin draperies, however, did not interfere with their court work and they proved an agile and thoroughly capable set of cage performers.

As an aftermath of the 1931 Miami Valley League football competition, the coaches of the six schools will get together one of these days and pick the annual mythical all-league teams. Xenia Central, finishing in a tie for last place, will place five gridironers on the all-league teams, but Freddie Drazon should be a stand-out contender for fullback, while Andy Frator at tackle and "Mo" Hyman at end may get recognition. Howard Thompson, probably the best punter in the league, should also receive consideration.

An outstanding wrestling feature will be offered at Memorial Hall in Dayton Thursday night when "Jumping Joe" Savoldi, star fullback on last season's Notre Dame football team, stacks up against Hardy Kruskamp, the great blocking halfback of Ohio State grid squads of recent years. Joe is a muscular giant, yet fast. He does not consider himself as championship timber yet, but is working up to that and has not lost a match. He was held to one draw. "If I get to be good enough, some day I'll ask for a championship match," he declares. "But just now I am going to school—learning all I can about this sport. I love it. It is just the stuff for me."

This department's private football expert, who wants to remain anonymous, has, after hours of profound thought, fixed up a couple of All-American football teams. Here they are, and if you can do any better, send in your selections:

First team: end—Dalrymple (Tulane) and Smith (Georgia); tackles—Marvill (Northwestern) and MacMurdo (Pittsburgh); guards—Baker (So. California) and Munn (Minnesota); center—Yarr (Notre Dame); quarterback—Wood (Harvard); halfbacks—Schwartz (Notre Dame) and McEver (Tennessee); fullback—Rentner (Northwestern).

Second team: ends—Arbuckle (So. California) and Orsl (Colgate); tackles—Kurth (Notre Dame) and Price (Army); guards—Hoffman (Northwestern) and Kabat (Wisconsin); center—Dagberry (Pittsburgh); quarterback—Mohler (So. California); halfbacks—Zimmerman (Tulane) and Pinckett (So. California); fullback—Melnikovitch (Notre Dame).

CONVERTED HINDU SPEAKS AT CHURCH HERE SUNDAY NIGHT

"Two years was I in America and no one ever told me of Jesus Christ," declared Arthur Novens Christopher, of Calcutta, India, at a Luther League meeting at the First Lutheran Church, Sunday evening.

Mr. Christopher was one of the world's great magicians and jugglers before his conversion to Christianity in Fort Wayne, Ind., January 1, 1928.

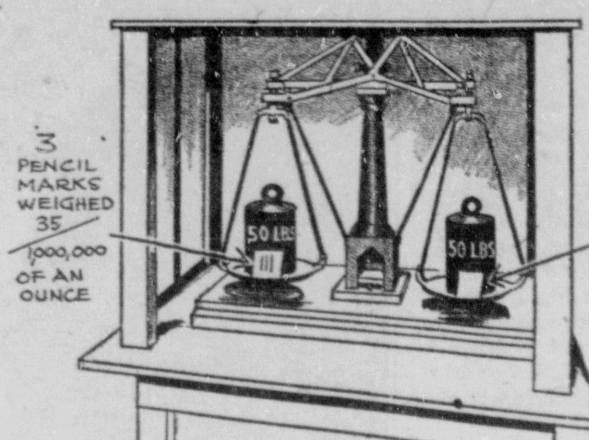

The service was conducted by the Rev. Adrian C. Lebold. Miss Henrietta Fudge was accompanist and W. P. Maxwell and H. K. Snyder also had a part in the meeting, which was well attended. The young people's society from one of the Methodist churches attended in a body.

Mr. Christopher asserted that, "Too many persons today go to church and let the preacher do everything—the leading of the singing, too much of the praying, and the business and organization details of the church." In relating the story of his conversion he told of how he formerly worshipped the thirty-three million gods with all the rest of the 225 million people in India. He also exhibited a small solid brass idol, resembling the statue of a small girl with arms outstretched, the Hindu god of safety. While exhibiting this god Mr. Christopher told of how his people are in constant danger of lions, tigers, boa constrictors, and other dangers as they travel through certain parts of India, and how the Hindus prostrate themselves before this idol of safety in paying it homage and appreciation.

Mr. Christopher is now living at Springfield, and speaks frequently at gatherings of church organizations. He is planning to return to India in a few years as a financially independent missionary among his own people.

HONOR HINCHMAN

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 30.—Lew Hinchman, hard-smashing halfback, was elected captain of the 1932 Ohio State football team while the squad was enroute home from the Minnesota game, according to an announcement today.

Center Dick Smith, Guard Martin Varner and Hinchman were nominated. The captain-elect is a graduate of Columbus North High School and is also a basketball and baseball star.

JAMESTOWN FIVE IS LOSER TO COLUMBUS TEAM SUNDAY NIGHT

Shop Bakers Victors By 47 To 31 Score; Play Thursday

Stepping out of its class once more, the Jamestown Merchants independent basketball quintet was defeated by the Shop Bakers of Columbus by a score of 47 to 31 at Columbus Sunday night. Jamestown trailed at the half, 17 to 7.

The Merchants will play the Walts Semi-Pros of Springfield at Jamestown High gymnasium Thursday night. Two preliminaries will involve the Jamestown Grange and Jamestown junior high teams.

STATE CHAPLAIN TO CONDUCT SERVICES

Mrs. G. N. Pillsbury, Treble, state chaplain of the American Legion Auxiliary, will preside at all devotional periods at the third district conference at the Biltmore Hotel, Dayton, Wednesday, Mrs. Charles Darling, Jr., Mrs. Guy Toms and Mrs. Clara Bennett, this city, will attend as delegates from the auxiliary of Joseph P. Foody Post, this city, and it is expected that a number of other local women will attend. Members attending are asked to note that the convention will meet Wednesday instead of Saturday as formerly stated.

Mrs. E. P. Middleton, Dayton, president of the third district, will preside and among the speakers will be J. Edward Johns, Massillon, O., who will discuss American Legion child welfare work and Fred Pruden, department hospital chairman. Women of Unit No. 5, Dayton, will be hostesses at the convention.

GENERAL COXEY HAS PLAN FOR RELIEF

MASSILLON, O., Nov. 30.—Still hopeful that congress will adopt his non-interest bearing bond plan as an emergency relief measure to bring back prosperity, General Jacob S. Coxe, mayor-elect of Massillon, will leave here tonight for Washington to be present at the opening of congress.

MARSHAL CRESWELL APPOINTS DEPUTY AND THREE BAILIFFS

Robert Hughes, 42, Oak Hill, Jackson County, was appointed a deputy U. S. marshal for the southern Ohio district by U. S. Marshal P. H. Creswell Monday, he revealed in an announcement issued at his home here.

Hughes will succeed John W. Hook, formerly of Adams County, veteran deputy marshal who resigned effective Monday to become bailiff in the circuit court of appeals. Hughes will assume his duties Tuesday.

He is a World War veteran with a record of twenty-one months in the artillery, seventeen of these overseas, and is prominent in American Legion and ex-service men's work in his home county, being post. He was appointed after being endorsed for the post by G. O. P. Potts and executive committee of his home county, the ex-service men of the tenth district and Congressman Tom Jenkins of Ironton.

Hughes' appointment will be the only appointment made to the staff of deputy marshals following the resignation of two deputies in the last few months. Instead John W. Potts and Ralph Smith both of Cincinnati, have been appointed by Marshal Creswell as deputies in the district court of appeals to serve except during criminal cases, thus relieving the marshal's office of assuming charge of this court.

HOME CADETS WILL OPEN COURT SEASON HERE NEXT SATURDAY

Turning their attention abruptly from football to basketball, O. S. and S. O. Home cage candidates are working like beavers these days, preparatory to embarking upon an ambitious court schedule which, though still incomplete, already calls for fifteen games. Five open dates remain unfilled.

The Home boys' second team, the junior high quintet and girls' team will also compete in quite a few games this season, seven games having already been arranged for the feminine team and five for the "B" quintet.

The cadet "varsity" boys' team will open its season against Wayneville on the Wayneville floor December 5, and there will be a preliminary between the second teams of the two schools.

Coach Fred Neff has five letter men from last season's squad back again, but his most crying need is a couple of forwards. The experienced guards are abundant. Veterans on hand include Trumphour, center or guard; Wolfe, center; Wooten, Schuck and Lakes, guards. The squad numbers twenty-five cagers and there are also sixteen boys out for the junior high team.

Following is the season's schedule in its present incomplete stage:

Dec. 5 Wayneville A&B there, Dec. 11 Open.
Dec. 18 North Hampton there.
Jan. 2 DeGraff, there.
Jan. 8 Osborn, there.
Jan. 19 Otterbein Home A&B, here.
Jan. 15 Yellow Springs, there.
Jan. 16 Wayneville A&B, here.
Jan. 22 Open.
Jan. 23 Stivers Reserves A, here.
Jan. 29 Open.
Feb. 5 Stivers Reserves A, there.
Feb. 6 North Hampton, here.
Feb. 12 Open.
Feb. 13 Greenfield A&B, there.
Feb. 19 Bowersville, boys & girls, there.
Feb. 20 Indiana S. and S. C. Home here.
Feb. 26 State Deaf School, there.
Feb. 27 Greenfield B & Jr. Hl, here.
Mar. 4 S. C. National Tournament, Springfield.

RESUME HEARING OF INJUNCTION SUIT

After a ten-day delay, hearing of the taxpayer's injunction suit seeking to halt further construction work on the $180,000 centralized school building being erected in Beaver Creek Twp., was resumed before Judge R. L. Gowdy in Common Pleas Court Monday morning.

The suit was filed by Irvin M. Coy on behalf of himself and other taxpayers of the township against The W. H. Howard Construction Co., Columbus, the charge being that the Columbus contractor, through use of inferior materials and failure to adhere to the plans and specifications, had cheapened the construction.

Judge Gowdy, who decided to hear the case on its merits, while permitting the construction to continue in the meantime, adjourned the hearing suddenly November 20 and granted continuance until November 30.

Schooner's Crew Is Safe; Help Rushed

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—The S. S. Herman Frasch and the schooner Ida S. Dow collided today about sixty miles off Currituck Lights, N. C.

The schooner was damaged, Coast Guard headquarters here reported, but its crew of eleven was reported in no danger.

The coast guard cutter Carabasset, out of Norfolk, sped by the Virginia capes on the way to render assistance to the Ida S. Dow if needed.

Advices reaching here said the schooner could hold out safely unless the weather turned bad. The cutter was expected to reach the vessel about noon. It was believed the S. S. Herman Frasch was standing by in case of emergency.

The Herman Frasch is of American registry. The schooner is from Boston.

ARGUMENT STILL UNSETTLED

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 30.—When they rolled down the curtain on the 1931 Ohio college football season today, one question remained unanswered:

"Which is the better team, De-fiance or Bluffton?"

Meeting in a charity game at Lima Saturday in one of the closing contests of the season, the two clubs battled to a scoreless tie.

The Saturday game was especially arranged between them to settle a dispute that grew up the week before when they played a 12-12 tie.

Wooster's gallant showing against the Navy team was a fitting finish to the season for the Scots. Although defeated, 19 to 6, the Wooster team staged a hard fight, holding the Navy to one touchdown for the first three quarters.

Dayton's last game, played against the Norte Dame "B" squad, ended in a 6 to 6 tie. Both teams scored in the second period and played tight football thereafter.

COMMUNITY CHEST FUND NEAR $10,000

Although Xenia's fourth annual Community Chest drive seems destined to fall $2,000 shy of its $12,000 goal, chest leaders disclosed Monday that $10,000 is in sight, due to an active post-campaign "clean-up." Related contributions have brought the fund total to nearly $9,700. A number of chest subscribers have increased their original pledges and the chest organization is renewing its appeal to Xenian's for extra donations.

CHEST CLINIC WILL BE HELD THURSDAY

The diagnostic chest clinic being organized at present in the county will be held at the Court House Thursday.

These clinics have been popularly called tuberculosis clinics but it is preferred that they be called diagnostic chest clinics because the patient is examined down to the diaphragm, it is pointed out. This means an examination for diseased tonsils, adenoids, lymphatic gland enlargement, possible exophthalmic goiter, heart lesion or any complication more than a possible infection of tuberculosis.

Many suspected cases of tuberculosis have been found to be nothing more than neglected tonsillar infections, while decayed teeth or pyorrhea have played their part in causing conditions which stimulate tuberculosis. Statistics show that 95 per cent of the cases diagnosed in these clinics as positive cases of tuberculosis have placed themselves under their physician's management.

Funds received from the sale of Christmas Health seals in the county is used to carry on the clinic, assisted by the state department.

LEGION BUTTON IS HIGH HONOR

(Editors Note: This is the third in a series of four articles by prominent men of Xenia, each of whom was asked, "Why should every person eligible become a member of the American Legion?" as a part of the membership campaign of Jos P. Foody Post No. 95, of the American Legion.)

By S. V. COX

Nearly every person in Xenia knows the genial cashier of the Commercial and Savings Bank, Amos E. Faulkner, who, despite his busy days, is one of the easiest men in Xenia to see when it becomes necessary. He makes no exception to newspaper men and when asked, "Why should every person eligible become a member of the American Legion?" he said, "Well, let me see now, I don't believe I know of any reason why any man eligible should not be a member of the American Legion. It is a high honor."

He paused and then followed on: "The American Legion's highest purpose is to insure that the ideals and traditions for which we fought shall be preserved in our country now and for all time to come. Legionnaires are daily giving their time, money and labor to constructive work for the benefit of the public. Every person eligible should become a member because the Legion button will identify you as a man who rendered honorable service in time of war and as a member of an organization which is continuing to serve in time of peace."

During the evening the Home Cadet Band, under the direction of Prof. H. E. Seall, presented a program on the dance floor. The band was attired in natty, new uniforms which were purchased by the Forty and Eight Society. The uniforms consist of white trousers, blue coats and hats with white shoulder cords on the coats. The band presented a striking appearance in the new outfits and its program was well received by the visitors.

Among visitors at the Home during the festivities were T. R. Herzog, Portsmouth, grand chemist of the seventh district; H. H. Rickey, Portsmouth, grand conductor; W. L. DeVoe, Lima, national chemist and ex-grand chef de gare; Robert C. Weber, Dayton, grand chef de gare of the Ohio Voture; R. B. Thorne, Washington C. H., grand commissaire; Earl Kenney, Dayton, grand correspondent; Milton D. Campbell, Cincinnati; past grand chef de gare and a member of the Home board of trustees. Mr. DeVoe is also chairman of the state child welfare committee of the organization which planned the party.

Children from 8 to 13 years old enjoyed a motion picture show at the Bijou Theater in Xenia at 4:15 o'clock and each child was given a bag of Karmelcorn. An entertainment for children confined in the Home hospital was given at 5:15 and these children were served refreshments. During the children's supper hour music was furnished by Cliff Perrine's Orchestra. Dayton. A buffet luncheon was served approximately 100 members of the Forty and Eight Society and their guests at 6:45 o'clock.

The day's festivities were brought to a close in the evening with a dance for all children, 14 years and older, all Home employees and guests in the gymnasium. Music was furnished by Perrine's Orchestra, and several novelties were introduced in their program.

HOME CHILDREN ENTERTAINED AT FORTY AND EIGHT PARTY HERE

A Thanksgiving party, replete in every detail, was enjoyed by children of the O. S. and S. O. Home at the institution Saturday afternoon and evening. The party, which is an annual affair, was sponsored by the Grand Voture of Ohio, of the Forty and Eight Society.

The afternoon's program was to have started with a dress parade at 2 o'clock but because of inclement weather this was not held. A football game, between the Printers and Electros was played, the game resulting in a scoreless tie.

A party for children from the ages 4 to 7 years was held in the junior high school auditorium from 4 until 6 o'clock. The children played games and were given favors of balloons and fancy paper hats. Refreshments of ice cream, cake, apples and cocoa were served.

INDIANS TO HUNT BISON

YELLOWSTONE PARK, Wyo.—The American bison, once the best friend of the Red Man has again come to the rescue in helping to keep the wolf from the door of at least one tribe of Indians. Faced with the problem of caring for a fast growing buffalo herd, Director Albright of the National Park Service was asked by E. T. Scoyen, superintendent of Glacier National Park, to allow the Blackfoot Indians and other tribes to use the meat from surplus buffalo. Arrangements will soon be made to slaughter about one hundred head of buffalo and ship the meat, about 50,000 pounds to the reservation.

INA CLAIRE AND ROBERT AMES

1921. Later he played opposite Francine Larrimore in "Ice Bound", the Owen Davis Pulitzer prize play and his last important New York engagement was with Alice Brady in "Seed of the Brute."

Ames had been working in pictures almost steadily since 1925, beginning in the silent when he was induced to leave the stage by Cecil De Mille. "Three Faces East", "The Trespasser" and "Rebound" were some of his film vehicles but he probably made his most rapid ascent in popularity by virtue of his part in the tremendously successful "Holiday", in which he played opposite Ann Harding.

The marriage record of the dead actor was in the best Hollywood tradition, since he had wed and divorced four times. His first wife was Alice Gerry of Fall River, Mass., whom he married in 1908 and by whom he had two children, a son, now 23 and a daughter now 19.

He divorced his first wife in 1915 and married Frances Goodrich in 1917. This marriage was dissolved by divorce in 1923 and Ames married Vivienne Segal, musical comedy star. They were divorced and Ames married Miss Muriel Oakes, New York and Greenwich, Conn., society girl in 1927. She obtained a divorce in Los Angeles in 1930.

Ina Claire, a Broadway favorite before she went to Hollywood to make talkies, married John Gilbert shortly after her arrival there and divorced him after a short union. The decree became final last August. Although Ames was 42 he looked much younger and was able to play leading man roles.

Another player in Paramount's long-delayed "No One Man" will be Paul Lukas, who will play the doctor in the Rupert Hughes story.

Ricardo Cortez has been borrowed from Radio for the male lead and Carole Lombard will be the heroine. Lloyd Corrigan directs. The story ran serial in Cosmopolitan.

SERVICE OF LEGION STRESSED IN DRIVE FOR 1932 MEMBERS

"Service" to ex-servicemen, their families and their dependents is not just a word, officials of Jos. P. Poody Post of the American Legion revealed Monday, when Chairman Harry M. Smith of the membership campaign committee was asked to give some specific examples of "service" to veterans of the county.

"There are at least three families of ex-servicemen in Greene County who know that it is not just 'lip-service' that the American Legion gives when aid is needed," Chairman Smith said. "I have in mind three cases in which $480 of the national endowment fund of the American Legion was used to provide the necessities of life while death claims, and compensation claims were being adjudicated by the United States Veterans Bureau in the last six months."

"Immediately after these cases were filed by Paul Fuller, service officer of Jos. P. Poody post, it was discovered that these families would know distress and want if some provision was not made for them in the months that it requires the government to iron out red tape and start payment of compensation. So application was made to the endowment fund and almost immediately $50 per month was received for each case until the claims were settled."

"This is only one of the forms of service the Legion renders to ex-servicemen and to the community at large," Chairman Smith concluded. A partial report of results of the campaign is to be given by Chairman Smith at Tuesday night's "open house" meeting of the Legion.

FIVE INJURED WHEN AUTOS COLLIDE ON HIGHWAY SATURDAY

Paul James, Yellow Springs, driver of the car, suffered minor cuts about the face and four Springfield men were injured, not seriously, in an auto collision at 1:15 a. m. Saturday as they were returning to Springfield from DeGraff, O.

One of the injured men who received severe cuts and bruises about the head, face, left leg and right arm, was removed to an Urbana Hospital and another, after being given first aid at the same hospital, was discharged. James, and another injured companion were taken to City Hospital at Springfield by a passing autoist, given medical attention and discharged.

The men, all of whom are employed by The Steele and Meredith Co., Springfield, had been working in DeGraff, where the company is opening a new store. The mishap occurred a half mile north of the Clark County line in Champaign County.

The auto driven by James collided, it was reported, with a car driven by Al Brooker, Urbana. Brooker attempted to pass another car, then applied the brakes when he saw the machine operated by James approaching. His car skidded into a guard rail along the highway, blocking the road and the Springfield auto crashed into the rear end of the machine.

MILLIONS OF INVENTIONS
CHICAGO—instead of there being nothing new under the sun, there are many things including inventions—1,200,000 of them in the last thirty years, Charles L. Howard, assistant general counsel of the Western Railway Association said in proving his point. There are 400,000 inventions detailing railroad patents and they are still being issued at the rate of 125 each week. Many are useless, but many others valuable in saving life and property. One of the useless inventions was designed to prevent a locomotive from falling over when it was motionless.

REPEAL AND BUSINESS

Editor, The Gazette:

Can dry repeal aid business? That question heads an editorial in the Christian Science Monitor of November 14, which I hope you will publish.—Reader.

The editorial follows:

"Ninety-seven respected and influential American business men might believe the mellow jest that the moon is made of green cheese, and yet the dairy industry of Switzerland and Wisconsin would be in little danger of competition from that source. For majorities among small groups, even of business leaders, do not make facts."

"All this is apropos of a report that the very competent business organization, Bradstreet's, found that ninety-seven out of 140 men who 'elected to reply' in a recent canvass—a much larger number evidently were interviewed—believe that either repeal or modification of national prohibition would aid economic recovery."

"It is worth while to note that this statement deals only with opinions or conclusions, not with reasons why beer would or would not help. The main question is not whether men believe a legalized return to alcoholic liquor would help business, but whether that proposition has in it the economic factors which actually would help—or injure—business."

"The economic claims made for a revival of the liquor industry are that it would give (1) added employment to workers; (2) farm relief through a market for grain; (3) tax relief as a result of new government revenues; (4) a stimulus to business confidence."

"The claims regarding employment have been so thoroughly deflated by a reference to pre-prohibition Census Bureau figures and by deduction for the loss of jobs through diversion of buying power from other industries that few are deceived on this point any longer. Moreover, in this claim the wets contradict their own theme song about the prevalence of the bootlegger. If the illegal sale is as extensive as the wets have claimed, then by their hypothesis legalized sale would put as many out of employment as it would put in. If it is not, then there is less reason for repeal of prohibition on the score of unenforceability."

tion on the score of unenforceability.

"The farm relief argument has been exploded, by the National Grange, which has calculated that products alone since prohibition the increased demand for dairy provides a better market for grain than would a resuscitated brewing industry."

"As for the tax argument, while business corporations might be relieved of part of the income tax, have their presidents and sales managers calculated the extent to which they would be taxed by the competition of the legalized liquor seller for the consumer's dollar? Dr. Paul T. Cherington, director of research for the J. Walter Thompson Company, a New York advertising agency, has done so, and wrote nearly a year ago in Advertising and Selling that, balancing prospective liquor advertising with losses elsewhere, his profession "would seem to have little to gain and much to hazard in any modification of the Eighteenth Amendment or the enforcement acts."

"Finally, there is the view represented in an analysis by the Standard Statistics Company. This leading financial service says:

"We do not anticipate that any pronounced or sustained economic benefits would accrue from the restoration of legalized beer and wine, either in greatly increased consumption of raw materials, or in increased employment opportunities or governmental revenues."

"It concludes that 'the greatest benefit from modification would emanate from the psychological effect' that is, from a momentary stimulation to confidence arising merely from a popular assumption that it would help business."

"Ordinarily business leaders would refuse to act on so flimsy a premise. They usually are quick to expose the fallacies in political-economic nostrums, as when they resist monetary inflation, bimetalism, the giving of a dollar, price-fixing in farm relief or government participation in business. Many have denounced the idea that the nation can deceive itself into a state of prosperity. Let them beware now that they are not so grossly misled as those whom they criticize. The needed fillip to confidence already has been given in a more substantial form by President Hoover's financial program and without the heavy aftercast in social and economic welfare which would follow a return to rum."

Santa Claus Speaking:

Almost everyone knows that the Arctic is called the land of the midnight sun. Just a few realize that it is also a land that during the winter months has days in which there is no sun and weeks during which the sun is visible for just a few hours each day.

Few travel in the Arctic during the winter months and it will surprise even those who have visited the North in the summer and have at midnight seen a great red sun right on the edge of the horizon rise slowly instead of going out of sight as the evening sun always does at your home, to find that Santa Claus on his trip will have to travel for the first few days through the darkness of night.

Now it will not always be totally dark but even in the very middle of the day at noon, it will be little better than twilight and only for a couple of hours will the twilight period last. The rest of the time it will be quite dark. Each day the twilight period will get longer and then real daylight comes for a few minutes at noon and the sun will each day appear for a little longer period.

As spring comes and passes and summer approaches the sun shines for longer and longer periods each day until in the middle of June for a few days it may be seen every hour of the day even at midnight. Santa Claus will have to travel during the very short days and you children who worry about the long evenings in the winter will understand that Santa Claus is often sad and impatient when he has to spend hours and hours traveling through darkness. But he is helped sometimes by the wonderful moonlight nights. Nights often as bright, almost, as day. Sometimes, too, his way is lighted by the beautiful northern lights.

"I suppose I'm like most people who read the newspapers..."

"I DON'T read all the ads, any more than I read the whole of any newspaper or magazine. But I do read a good many of them."

"Recently I've been reading more than usual, and I certainly like what Chesterfield has to say and the way it is said. I would probably like the cigarette, too, but somehow I just haven't got 'round to trying it."

"Come to think of it, I can't tell you why I smoke this other cigarette. It's more from habit, I suppose, than for any real reason."

"I'd never thought about it before, but last night, at a party, I noticed eight of my friends—five men and three girls—who had changed to Chesterfields. They told me that Chesterfields are milder, that they taste better, that they just seem to satisfy."

"Of course, cigarettes are a small thing, but, after all, they give me a lot of pleasure, and a cigarette like Chesterfield that you hear such good things about, must be good. Anyway, I've just bought my first package of Chesterfields, and I believe I'll find them just like the ads say—milder—taste better—pure—satisfy."
